Cars are becoming more automated in an effort to avoid or mitigate the effects of accidents. ## National Bath Safety Month

While you might not think of the bathroom as a dangerous place, that's not always the case. In fact, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reports that around 235,000 people require ER visits every year because of accidents in the bathroom. Around 14% require hospitalization because of their injuries. Since a majority of injuries happen while showering/bathing, it makes sense to take precautions before "slipping" into that bubble bath or hopping in the shower.

January is National Bath Safety Month, so now is the perfect time to prevent injuries:

- Install slip-resistant strips/decals on the bottom of the shower/tub or use slip-resistant tub/shower mats
- Install safety handles in the bathtub and/or shower to prevent falls when getting in/out
- Use non-slip rugs or shower mats on the floor near the bathtub/shower

- Always test the water temperature to ensure it's not too hot
- Make sure the bathroom floor is clean and free of tripping hazards
- Never leave young children unattended in the bathtub
